What's new, noteworthy, cool and stylish for spring

DECORATING VANITY PROJECT

SCAVOLINI, the Italian company known for its sleek kitchen designs, is now in the bathroom-vanity business. Its new range of modular cabinets, which made their North American debut at last month's Interior Design Show in Toronto, come in a wide variety of shades, from pristine white to the glossy turquoise on the Font wall units shown here; other features include stone, glass or ceramic countertops, customizable pullout drawers and a choice of 25 washbasin and 30 lighting options. The line is available in Canada exclusively through Dekla (www.dekla.com). – ANNA-KAISA WALKER

AMERICAN GRAFFITI

Street artist Curtis Kulig's ubiquitous "Love Me" tag has been splashed across buildings and billboards from London to Tokyo. Now, the New Yorker's signature scrawl appears on a much smaller canvas thanks to his recent collaboration with SMASHBOX COSMETICS (www.smashboxcanada.com). Available nationwide at Shoppers Drug Mart, Pharmaprix and Sephora stores, the limited-edition collection of lipsticks, glosses and eye shadows emblazoned with Kulig's heartfelt directive includes universally flattering shades (one is the same vivid red that he uses in his work) and gorgeous packaging (the eyeliner is designed to look like one of his paint pens). Really, what's not to love? – A-K.W.
